Dr. Krawetz is a member of the committee from the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine that issued a report which includes a recommendation for the creation of a health monitoring and research program.

Stephen A. Krawetz, PhD

For the United States, the 1991 Persian Gulf War was a brief and successful military operation with few injuries and deaths. However, soon after returning from duty, a large number of veterans began reporting health problems they believed were associated with their service in the Gulf. At the request of Congress, the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine has been conducting an ongoing review of the evidence to determine veterans' long-term health problems and potential causes.
